Alice in Wonderland

Allegro Vivace Orchestra

One of the most favourite fairy tales in the world for children and adults alike. It's been 150 years, since the story of Alice by English author Lewis Carol first published, in July 1865. The "Allegro Vivace" instrumental ensemble will spread to the audience the Joy (Allegro) of Music, intensely and brightly (Vivace) under the direction of Yiannis Hadjiloizou. The melodies taken from various Disney movies, as well as free adaptations of excerpts from works by renowned composers (Haydn, Beethoven, Schubert, Tchaikovsky, Prokofiev, a.o.) will be accompanied by the vivid narration of the tale by the popular Cypriot actor Petros Georgadjis as well as clip projection. An exciting musical performance for "children" from 6 to 96 years old!!

Time: 17:00

ASINOU, AGIOS THEODOROS TRAIL (LINEAR)

A variety of landscape and panoramic view towards the gulf of Morfou. The path goes through wooded land, following a trail and an agricultural road. In the mountains of the Troodos range, some of the most important monuments of the history of Byzantine painting have survived. These are the painted churches which have to this day preserved brilliant examples of various trends of Byzantine and post-Byzantine monumental art, from the 11th to the 19th century. Ten of these churches have so far been granted World Cultural Heritage status by UNESCO. Panagia tis Asinou (1192 A.C.) is one of these churches.

Departure: 08:00 from APOEL training ground in Archangelos or at 09:15 at the beginning of the path at Panagia tis Asinou.

Distance length: 5.6km (11 km with return)

Difficulty level: Category 1-2 (easy to medium)

Draftmen's Congress - LIFEZONE LIFEPOINT

The Draftsmen's Congress: Life Zone – Life Point is an ongoing project initiated by Pawel Althamer, originally presented at the 7th Berlin Biennale in 2012 and then at various art centers around the world. Not an exhibition in the traditional sense, the project starts off with an empty room with white walls, and everyone is invited to create, engage and converse using images rather than words. Using paint and a brush, visitors are encouraged to react to issues such as politics, religion and current events. Althamer believes that this 'common space' allows hierarchies to be broken down and enables both bonding and debate. The artist, along with his various collaborators, will also host a series of workshops to encourage visitors to communicate and react in a non-verbal way.

A Godsend (Ein Geschenk der Götter)

Germany 2012 – 2014; Director: Oliver Haffner, 102 min.

Anna, an actress, unexpectedly loses her job at a small German town theatre. She can't expect much help from the local employment agency – but as it so happens, there is an administrator at the agency who, while not very militant, is enthusiastic about theatre. Anna takes on the job of teaching drama to eight long-term unemployed people. Initially, none of them are particularly enthusiastic about it, nor are they exalted about the drama "Antigone", which Anna wants to rehearse with them. But then the skeptical and difficult individuals manage to draw together and form a collective after all, giving all of them renewed hope. A GODSEND is a tragicomedy, where the stage is the setting for a collective restoration of the self-respect lost by each of the individuals.

My German Friend (Der deutsche Freund)

Germany/Argentina 2011/12; Director: Jeanine Meerapfel, 104 min.

It is a story of a deep love in a time of political upheaval and historical change. Sulamit Löwenstein, the daughter of Jewish emigrants from Germany, is growing up in Buenos Aires. Living cheek by jowl are Jews and Nazis who have fled from Europe and been thrown together again in a foreign country. As a young girl Sulamit falls in love with Friedrich, a young German boy, whose family lives in the house directly opposite – without knowing that he is the son of a son of a Nazi official who went into hiding. When Friedrich learns that his father was a high-ranking officer in the SS, he breaks with his family and goes to Frankfurt to study. Sulamit follows him, but their love fizzles out due to his involvement in politics.

Sputnik

Germany/Belgium/Czech Republic 2012/13; feature film; director: Markus Dietrich; 83 min.

A village in the GDR, autumn 1989: Friederike is building a rocket with her beloved Uncle Mike and two friends. This carefree space game is interrupted unexpectedly – Mike had applied for an exit visa and has to leave the country in the next few hours. Friederike is heartbroken by his departure. While under the constant suspicious watch of the village policeman, she intends to bring her uncle back by developing a machine with her two friends, which can beam him back to his homeland. Yet, it seems as though their experiment has the opposite results. While watching TV, the girl finds out that all the residents of the village are now in the West. The Wall has fallen, but Friederike has heard nothing about it. SPUTNIK is a children's film about the last weeks of the GDR.

All films are in German language with English subtitles.

Black Atolls - Tom Dale

British artist Tom Dale has been a resident with NiMAC and participant in a number of previous exhibitions. Key to his exhibition will be an important new body of work, which will occupy the central gallery space. Rising from the floor and extending from the walls, a series of "Atolls" or sculptural tableaux will use carpets taken from a mixture of abandoned and condemned interior spaces. Incisions into the body of the carpets open them out to operate like portals to redundant destinations, dead ends for hopes and aspirations.

"Still Life" by Dimitris Papaioannou

The Rialto Theatre is pinned on the international tour map of the most recent work of Dimitris Papaioannou (Edafos Dance Theatre (1986-2002), opening and closing ceremony of the 2004 Athens Olympic Games, 2 (2006), Medea2 (2008), opening ceremony of Baku European Games 2015). With "Still Life", Dimitris Papaioannou signs yet another gem, perhaps the most important one and, definitely, the most luminous and lucid too; a diamond shining through the nudity of its simplicity" (To Tetarto Koudouni).

"Apart from the meaning of Still Life in Art, the performance attaches another term to the story: life is still here, it resists, as if there were no perspectives... Still alive" (DANSER canal Historique)

Cyprus Symphony Orchestra Soloists

The Cyprus Suite by Nicos Vichas is a series of Cypriot dance folk songs, contrapuntally elaborated by the composer to express the optimism and valiance of Cypriot people. Martinů's distinguished Concerto for oboe and orchestra, premiered at the 1956 Olympics in Melbourne, features an optimistic first movement, a mysterious and haunting middle one and a spirited finale. In Spohr's charming, early romantic Concerto for string quartet, the four instruments, uncommonly assuming the role of soloists, engage in exciting musical discourse and display. Savvas Savva's Adagio for strings is part of a Trilogy, written in tribute to a friend who was prematurely lost in a car accident.

N. VICHAS: Cyprus suite for strings

B. MARTINŮ: Concerto for oboe and orchestra, H. 353

S. SAVVA: Adagio for strings

L. SPOHR: Concerto for strings quartet and orchestra, op. 131

NT LIVE

Les Liaisons Dangereuses

Following the successful broadcasts of Coriolanus and King Lear, National Theatre Live brings the Donmar Warehouse's highly anticipated new production of Les Liaisons Dangereuses to cinemas - broadcast from the Donmar's London home. Directed by Josie Rourke (Coriolanus), the cast includes Elaine Cassidy (The Paradise), Janet McTeer (The White Queen) and Dominic West (The Wire). In 1782, Choderlos de Laclos' novel of sex, intrigue and betrayal in pre-revolutionary France scandalised the world. Two hundred years later, Christopher Hampton's irresistible adaptation swept the board, winning the Olivier and Evening Standard Awards for Best Play. Josie Rourke's revival now marks the play's thirty year anniversary. Language: English.
