THU 16 – SUN, 26 FEB

CARNIVAL

Carnival in Cyprus may be traced back to classical antiquity and the festival of 'Dionysia', in honour of Dionysus, God of the Grape Harvest, Winemaking and Wine. The main events included a pompe procession, contests of dancing and singing, and the performance of Greek tragedies, including those of Aeschylus, Euripides and Sophocles.

The carnival feast continued in different forms during the Middle Ages, the periods of the Venetian, Frankish and Ottoman rule, as well as during the period of the British rule and over the years it moved away from the aristocratic halls and came out to the streets, squares and taverns, turning the carnival into a crowded public feast all over the island. Particularly in Lemesos, Carnival has taken a form of artistic expression and elegance; more than 12,000 people take part in the parades, with extravagant floats, serenaders, 'mandolinatas' and choirs, while thousands of people gather from all over Cyprus and abroad in order to enjoy and take part in the celebration.

Maniera Cypria: 13th century icons in Cyprus

The exhibition highlights the production of iconography in Cyprus during the 13th century and its Eastern and Western influences. During that time, Constantinople was under Latin rule and after the issuing of the Bulla Cypria mandate, the Church of Cyprus was placed under the Pope of Rome. This period is of paramount importance for the Byzantine art of Cyprus. The multicultural environment created on the island during the 1st century of the Frankish rule, the presence of the Latin Church, the artists coming to the island from the West, as well as the refugees from Syria and Palestine are all factors which influenced Cypriot iconography. The art of the time is a continuation of the rich Byzantine tradition of the period after Isaac Komninos, combining western and eastern elements.

The Ancient Greek Civilization & their Amazing Inventions

This exhibition is a selection from the exhibits of the Museum of ancient Greek Technology Kostas Kotsanas that operates at Katakolon port and Ancient Olympia. It aims to demonstrate that the technology of the ancient Greeks, just before the end of the ancient world, was shockingly similar to the beginning of our modern-day technology. For example, the bolts and nuts, gears and rules, pulleys and belts, sprockets and roller chains, pistons and cylinders, springs, hydraulic controllers and valves, programmers and auto-pilots (all parts of the engine of a modern car) are just some of the inventions of the ancient Greeks. These legacies, identical and irreplaceable, continue until today to constitute the core elements of our modern-day technology.

CYPRUS THEATRE ORGANISATION

The General Secretary

The General Secretary is one of the most important examples of modern Greek drama. Director Vassilis Nikolaidis notes: "How can a work written at the end of the 19th century and following the fashions of the time be presented and remain relevant to a contemporary audience in 2016? A work that is definitive and a socio-political musical satire about everything that was wrong in a Greece on the threshold of the 20th century?" But, the value of a play like The General Secretary lies exactly in the depth of its characters and situations. It is found in the irony with which the writer "views" his time and the way he criticizes the Greeks of "yesterday" which are also unfortunately the Greeks of "today". In Greek language with English and Turkish surtitles.

“Amathous of Cyprus, a city most ancient”

Amathous is one of the most interesting city-kingdoms of ancient Cyprus. On the occasion of 40 years of excavations (1975–2015) of the French Archaeological Mission of Amathous, the Department of Antiquities in collaboration with the French School at Athens, is organizing this exhibition. The exhibition covers a large chronological period, from prehistory to the first centuries of the Christian period. The exhibits are presented in four different thematic entities, which narrate the history of the city and the region of Amathous by providing information on public and private life, rituals, burial customs and commercial or cultural exchanges. The exhibition includes a brief reference to legends and traditions and the fact that the inhabitants of Lemesos, at least from the medieval period until today, refer to Amathous as “Palia Lemesos”, thus keeping alive the memory of the important city of ancient Cyprus, which was in fact the predecessor of the modern city of Limassol.

Venue: Archaeological Museum of the Lemesos District

Seven Stories. Lace and Modern Art

The exhibition features Athienou's unique lace crafts and their status as 'intangible heritage'. Described as "seven works of modern art listen to seven testimonials on Venis and Athienou needle lace", the exhibition revolves around oral testimonies of the history of lace making in the large village community, which have then been interpreted into modern art by various participating artists. The lace techniques of 'Venis' lace ('Pittotes') and Athienou lace ('Oloplouma') differ from Lefkara lace linens ('Lefkaritika') in their designs, whilst Oloplouma are made entirely out of lace without linen cloth. The lace is included in the Intangible Cultural Heritage of Cyprus Register, which confirms its traditional significance. The purpose of the exhibition is to fill the gap in the written account of this tradition; to revitalise the memories of the village during this era, and to introduce the younger generation to this significant piece of the village's history, which is not widely known.
